This design is fairly similar to the one I had before, except I wanted to keep in mind the future implementation of javascript and having users able to add more items to the cart. I wanted to also implement a remove object icon, so that if a user wants to remove a certain bun order they can by pushing the button.

This design best fits my previous choices in my other HTML files. I know that it's simple but it is consistent. I am excited to implement this with javascript functionality, allowing users to remove objects as well as see the added objects from the product details page.
